POSTPONE THE TRIAL GRIEF DEEPLY FFLT

Mrs. Bradley Called, but Court at Once Adjourns.

RESPECT FOR JUDGE McCOMAS

Testimony to Memory of Dead Jurist Disappoints Crowd, Which Had Assembled to Hear Testimony Against Slayer of Senator Brown—The Case Will Be Opened Wednesday.

A crowd which filled the corridors of the courthouse, and which formed a long line in front of the entrance of Criminal Court No. 1, assembled yesterday to witness the opening of the trial of Annie M. Bradley for the killing of former Senator Arthur Brown, of Utah.

But a small proportion gained access to the courtroom, and all were visibly disappointed when, upon motion of District Attorney D. W. Baker, court was adjourned until Wednesday morning, out of respect to the memory of Justice Louis E. McComas, who died Sunday morning. Just a few moments before 10 o'clock, Mrs. Bradley, unattended by any one save a deputy marshal, ascended the stairs close to the jury box, and was seated beside her counsel, Judge Orlando Powers and Messrs. Hoover & Wells. When she slipped into the courtroom almost unnoticed, she was evidently struggling to retain her composure under a tremendous nervous strain.

She was dressed in black, with a touch of white at the throat. Her face was wan, her cheeks hollow, and she seemed every moment on the verge of a collapse. It was noticeable to every one that it was only by a powerful effort that the frail little prisoner, weighing barely 100 pounds, was keeping herself from sinking to the floor.

Adjourns in Eight Minutes.
When Justice Stafford entered the room, and the court crier announced that the court was open, Clerk Samuel Hawken called the list of names of the witnesses who have been summoned by the prosecution and the defense. Nearly all answered "present," and, when the clerk had finished, District Attorney Baker rose and announced to the court the death of Justice McComas, and moved for adjournment. Attorney Hoover joined in the motion, and Justice Stafford ordered that, as a mark of respect for the dead jurist, the court adjourn to meet Wednesday morning.

The proceedings took only eight minutes. When the crier announced that court was adjourned, Mrs. Bradley, considerably relieved, accompanied Deputy Marshal Roberts down the steps to the prisoners' pen, where her mother, Mrs. Maddison, and little Martin Montgomery Brown were awaiting her. When she arrived at the room reserved for women prisoners, Mrs. Bradley seized her little boy and embraced him passionately, crying as if her heart would break. It was nearly half an hour before she regained her composure sufficiently to be led to the conveyance which had brought her to the courthouse. A crowd of curious men and women had collected around the east door of the building, and when Mrs. Bradley, accompanied by little Montgomery, emerged to enter the conveyance, there was a burst of applause. Mrs. Bradley assisted the chubby little boy into the wagon, and was herself assisted by Deputy Marshal Roberts and another deputy. The driver then whipped up the horse, and she was driven away.

Many Witnesses Called.
The witnesses for the government, as called by Clerk Hawken, are: Deputy Coroner L. W. Glazebrook, 2022 P street; Dr. Charles S. White, of the Emergency Hospital; Edward A. Parker, 299 L street northwest; Edward C. Cull, 513 Eleventh street northwest; Theobald J. Talley, of the Raleigh; Eustace C. Owen, 45 Seward square, southeast; Policeman Frank R. Emmert of No. 1 precinct; Detective Guy E. Burlingame; Sgt. Harry R. Lohman, of No. 1 precinct; Martha Thornburg, matron of the house of detention; Detective Clifford Grant; Capt. Robert H. Boardman, chief of detectives; Lieut. James Hartley of No. 1 precinct; Capt. George H. Williams of No. 1 precinct; Detective Charles Mullen, Policemen Everett L. Phillips and Abraham Houghlan, Detective Frank Helan; Edwin B. Hesse, property clerk of the police department; Clayton W. Holtzclaw, 1322 1/2 North Capitol street; David T. Nelson, 1202 K street northwest; Augustus Cumpert, 1608 H street northwest; Annie White, of the Raleigh; George Russell, of the District morgue; Benjamin A. Lamb, of 419 Sixth street northwest; D. H. Wenger, James Rowan, Ash B. Mosley, Max Brown, Albert H. Kelly, Parley P. Christensen, and Archibald Livingstone, all of Salt Lake City.

The witness called for the defense, at government expense, are: M. M. Kalghin, H. W. Henderson, E. W. Whitney, Arthur E. Barnes, Samuel H. King, and Lyman S. Shrewsbury, of Bonny Doone, Cal. Justice Stafford ordered the clerk to issue subpoenas for a special panel of 100 taleymen to report Wednesday morning. Both the prosecution and the defense admit that the trial will be a protracted one, and it may be three or four weeks before the case will go to the jury.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD TO-DAY

Body Will Be Removed, to Hagerstown for Interment—Justice Gould and District Attorney Baker Mentioned to Succeed to Place Made Vacant by Jurist's Death.

Every branch of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia yesterday adjourned until Wednesday morning, out of respect to the memory of Justice Louis E. McComas. Members of the Bar Association appeared in each of the six branches of the court and formally announced the death of Justice McComas, and each was adjourned.

William F. Mattingly, president of the Bar Association, appointed the following members of the organization to attend the funeral at Hagerstown as representatives of the association: Nathaniel Wilson, J. J. Darlington, Samuel Maddox, George E. Hamilton, A. S. Worthington, Henry E. Davis, John B. Larner, R. Ross Perry, Fred D. McKenney, Aldis B. Browne, Charles H. Cragin, Samuel R. Bond, J. Nota McGill, E. H. Thomas, J. Holdsworth Gordon, B. F. Leighton, A. A. Hoehling, Jr., D. W. Baker, and G. B. Blair.

Condolences Are Many.
Not alone by the action of the courts of justice, but also by the eulogies of associations or of colleagues, was tribute paid yesterday to Judge Louis E. McComas.

In the halls of justice, in the office buildings where attorneys who knew him met, there may have been more than a passing word of regret for the death of this profound jurist. But in the big house in Wyoming avenue, where a young wife is grief-stricken, where the body lay in state for friends to see, the real tribute was paid to the man. Scores of men who have known Judge McComas for long years, men who have seen him as a lawyer, as a statesman, and as a judge, passed through the silent room in which this familiar face—more deeply silent than all else—could for the last time be seen by them. Telegrams expressing the regret of those who could not be present came from many parts of the country, and the regret of hundreds in the city itself was apparent. A few brief words of prayer were said over the body last night, at which only the immediate relatives of the justice were present. A nephew, Rev. Joseph McComas, of Annapolis, conducted this brief service. This morning the body will be taken from the late home to the new Union Station and will be placed on the 9 o'clock Baltimore and Ohio train for Hagerstown, Md.

Services at Hagerstown.
The services at Hagerstown will be conducted by Rev. Mr. McComas in St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church at 2 o'clock. The honorary pallbearers will be Vice President Fairbanks, one of the close friends of the judge; Chief Justice Shepard, and Justice Robb, of the Court of Appeals; Chief Justice Claiborne and Justice Gould, of the District Supreme Court; Mr. J. J. Hemphill, a member of Congress at the time of the late judge's service in that body; Mr. George R. Galtner and Mr. Leon Greenbaum, of Baltimore, former law partners of the judge; Senator Stephen B. Elkins; Mr. Samuel Maddox; Congressman George A. Pearce, of Maryland; Mr. Henry W. Hodges, clerk of the Court of Appeals, and Mr. Gist Blair.

The interment will be made at Rose Hill cemetery, near Hagerstown, in the family lot, in which the first wife of Judge McComas now lies. There was expression on every side of sincere regret for the death of Judge McComas. There was also considerable discussion as to his probable successor. The Court of Appeals is the highest judicial tribunal in the District of Columbia, appointment to which is made by the President. It is composed of three members. With Judge McComas' death, the surviving members are Chief Justice Shepard and Charles H. Robb.

Candidates Are Named.
Discussion yesterday centered around the names of Ashley M. Gould, associate justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and United States District Attorney D. W. Baker. It appeared that the elevation of Justice Gould to the Court of Appeals and the appointment of Mr. Baker to the vacancy caused by Justice Gould's elevation would meet with general approval. Both these men have practically grown up with Washington, although both are voters in the State of Maryland.

Justice Gould was formerly district attorney, and it was on account of the record made in this position that President Roosevelt appointed him a judge. He was appointed district attorney by President McKinley in May, 1901, and in December, 1902, he was appointed a justice of the District Supreme Court. He has been eminently successful as a judge, and is considered a profound student of the law. His appointment as a justice of the Court of Appeals would meet with universal approval among members of the bar. He was graduated from Georgetown Law School in 1884, and is now a lecturer for his alma mater.

District Attorney Baker has made an enviable record as District Attorney. He is considered one of the hardest workers among lawyers in the District. He also was graduated from Georgetown Law School, and is now a lecturer there. An elevation to the bench has been predicted for him by many who have watched his career, and it is said that at the proper time steps will be taken to bring to the President's attention his eminent fitness for the place.

Another name mentioned in connection with the vacancy caused by Judge McComas' death is that of Justice Wendell Philip Stafford, who now presides in Criminal Court No. 1. It is conceded that he would be a strong candidate if he were to have his name presented for the vacancy.

Justice Stafford has made an excellent record since he has been on the bench here, and is very popular among members of the bar. It is thought unlikely that the Bar Association will officially

LAWYERS HONOR DEAD JUDGE.
Maryland Bar Association Will Attend Funeral in a Body.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 11.—A meeting of the members of the local bar was held this afternoon. President William Kelhoffer, of the Bar Association of Washington County, presiding, for the purpose of taking action upon the death of Judge Louis E. McComas, who had been a member of this bar since 1888. Daniel W. Doubt was secretary of the meeting. Members of the bar decided to attend in a body the funeral to-morrow afternoon. Alexander Neill, Charles D. Wagonman, Alexander R. Hagner, George A. Davis, and Norman B. Scott, Jr., were appointed a committee on resolutions. Abraham C. Strite, Col. Charles A. Little, W. H. A. Hamilton, J. Augustine Mason, and Daniel W. Doubt a committee on floral tributes.

COLD SNAP PREDICTED.
Weather Bureau Gives Warning of Drop in Temperature.
The Weather Bureau sharpens last night said that a cold wave is on the way from the West. The temperature, it was predicted, will take a drop of thirty degrees, and cold-wave flags have been ordered posted all through the South. It is predicted by Prof. Frankfort that the country east of the Rocky Mountains will be swept by the cold wave. The weather in Colorado is 10 to 18 degrees above zero, and all through the Northwest cold weather will hold forth from now on.

Asks to Surrender Bond.
Dr. Charles A. Stewart, of 406 Sixth street northwest, last night requested the police of the First precinct to release him from the $1,000 bond which he gave several days ago to secure the release of Emil Schultz, of 624 Twenty-second street, who was arrested on the charge of operating a hand book. Schultz appeared at the station house in company with a representative of the bondsmen, Lieut. Peck, after consulting with Assistant District Attorney Givens, refused to receive and detain the man. It is probable that Dr. Stewart will appear in the courts to-day and request to be released from the bond through the proper channels.
